1. In golf, a golfer is said to be shooting par when she puts a golf ball in the hole in a designated number of strokes. For example, for a golfer to shoot 'par' on a par 5, she must put the ball in the hole using only 5 strokes. If a golfer scores anything but a par, there are additional names for those scores:

- o Birdie: when a golfer puts the ball in the hole using one fewer than the designated number of strokes. A golfer who scores a birdie is said to be shooting one under par, or -1.
- o Eagle: when a golfer scores two strokes below par, or -2.
- o Bogie: when a golfer scores one more stroke than par, or + 1.
- o Double Bogie: when a golfer scores two more strokes than par, or + 2.

Jesse went golfing this weekend. On the first 16 holes, she had 2 eagles, 3 birdies, 5 pars, 3 bogies and 3 double bogies. What was her final score relative to par? Express your answer as an integer.

Her final score was 2.
